Dog Mafia

In a bustling town, there was a gang of dogs known as the Mafia Dogs. They roamed the streets causing chaos in a very clever way, just like the mafia. These dogs were sneaky and smart, always planning their next big heist. Their leader, Bruno, a tough bulldog, led the gang with his loyal followers: Max, the sly one; Stank, the sharp-witted one; and Rocky, the speedy one.

One day, Bruno gathered the gang. "Today, we're going to pull off the biggest heist ever," he said with a twinkle in his eye. "We're going to steal from the butcher, Mr. Higgins." The gang wagged their tails in agreement. They had been eyeing Mr. Higgins' butcher shop for weeks, waiting for the perfect moment to strike.

That afternoon, the Mafia Dogs put their plan into action. Bruno distracted Mr. Higgins by barking loudly outside the shop, while Max squeezed through a small window to unlock the door from the inside. Bella and Rocky sneaked in and began grabbing as much meat as they could carry. They worked quickly and quietly, piling sausages, steaks, and chicken into a big sack.

Mr. Higgins finally noticed the commotion and ran inside, but it was too late. The Mafia Dogs had already escaped with their loot. They dashed to their secret hideout and feasted on the stolen meat, devouring every last bite.

The next day, the dogs woke up with terrible stomach aches. They were groaning and whining, their bellies bloated from eating too much. One by one, they started vomiting everywhere, making a huge mess. Unable to move, they rolled to the curb in agony. It wasn't long before the dog police arrived. Officer Rex, the German Shepherd, shook his head as he saw the sorry state of the Mafia Dogs. "Well, well, well, look what we have here," he said. "You thought you could get away with stealing, but now you're caught!"

1. What was the name of the leader of the Mafia Dogs?

6. What are the consequences of stealing, and how could the Mafia Dogs have handled their desire for meat in a better way? _____

- 1.What was the name of the leader of the Mafia Dogs? The leader of the Mafia Dogs was named Bruno.
- 2.Who did the Mafia Dogs decide to steal from? The Mafia Dogs decided to steal from the butcher, Mr. Higgins.
- 3.How did the Mafia Dogs feel the next day after eating all the stolen meat? The Mafia Dogs felt terrible the next day with stomach aches, and they were vomiting everywhere.
- 4.Why did Bruno and the Mafia Dogs choose to target Mr. Higgins' butcher shop? Bruno and the Mafia Dogs likely targeted Mr. Higgins' butcher shop because it had a lot of meat, which they wanted to steal and eat.
- 5.What might have happened if Mr. Higgins had caught the Mafia Dogs in the act? If Mr. Higgins had caught the Mafia Dogs in the act, he probably would have stopped them, and they might not have gotten away with the meat.
- 6.What are the consequences of stealing, and how could the Mafia Dogs have handled their desire for meat in a better way? The consequences of stealing include getting into trouble, feeling guilty, and potentially facing punishment, as the Mafia Dogs did when they were caught by the dog police. The Mafia Dogs could have handled their desire for meat in a better way by finding honest ways to get food, such as working together to find food in the wild, asking for help, or performing tricks to earn treats.
